Penzance lies at the western end of the Cornish peninsula facing onto Mounts Bay on the south coast of Cornwall. The town is the principal retail area in the district previously known as Penwith and is a relatively busy commercial centre accommodating the Council offices and Magistrates. Penzance has good communication links with a direct link to the A30 which forms the arterial road into and out of the County, linking with the M5 at Exeter. The town also has an Intercity railway station providing a regular service to Paddington London.

The property is situated in Causewayhead which has attracted a mixture of regional and local traders interspersed with national outlets with nearby occupiers including HSBC Bank, Scope Charity Shop, Rowes Bakery and Subway.
